It's guaranteed to massage your ears, eyes and your mind simultaneously.

Made by Darcy Prendergast and Oh Yeah Wow (Gotye, Art vs Science), the video took six months in the making, and was all shot in camera, frame by frame, by real people, in the real world, using long exposure techniques. No digital manipulation. Rippled follows the award winning and Guggenheim short-listed video Lucky from the band's 2009 album A Low High.

2011 marks the twelfth anniversary since All India Radio have been recording together, and it's been a hectic year so far with the release of The Silent Surf which Wired magazine describes as "mashed the ambient-hop signatures of DJ Shadow, Tortoise and Thievery Corporation with the instantly recognizable guitar soundtracking of Ennio Morricone and Angelo Badalamenti. The resulting narcotic musical textures are capable of floating listeners to galaxies far, far away."

The band have also had music featured in the latest season of CSI: Miami and in September will be touring the USA to support the release of the new album.

Clearly there's no stopping this prolific band that in the past have recorded with the likes of Steve Kilbey (The Church), Ed Kuepper (solo artist, The Saints and Nick Cave & The Bad Seeds), David Bridie (solo artist, Not Drowning Waving) and Graham Lee (The Triffids). Their music has been featured on many TV shows in Australia and overseas, as well as feature films including Sicko (Michael Moore), Til Human Voices Wake Us and Puppy. All India Radio compositions have also appeared in many tv commercials.

All India Radio guide you on a compelling trip through bewitching atmospheric music in the sphere of lush, lulling, rhythmic instrumental soundscapes via The Silent Surf (available now through MGM Distribution on CD, vinyl and digital www.allindiaradio.com.au)
